NORWAY AND VICINITY

A Few More Houses Needed.

During the past few weeks there has been considerable talk concerning the increasing of the business in the Shoe Factory as was explained by Frank H. Spiney and others at a recent Board of Trade meeting.

The Board of Trade appointed a committee of George L. Cummins, George L. Curtis and Charles H. Pike to canvas the town and see what the accommodations were for such an increase. While they found many available rooms and a number of rents there will be a demand for desirable rents, rents that have some of the modern improvements and which let for $12 to $18 a month. There are many lots in fine locations for building just such houses. At the present time there are not many cottage houses of this type and if there should be a few more built they would be readily rented, as the demand is certain to be greater.

It is understood that there must be several hundred more employed at the shoe factory and with what available rooms and rents there are, and a few more new ones built the increase in the town can be accommodated. Think it over.

Philip McAllister spent the day, Tuesday, in Lewiston.

Mrs. Jennie Foster leaves this week for a trip to Washington, D. C., with friends from Portland.

"The County Sheriff"

One of the strongest plays that will be presented here this season is "The County Sheriff." The plot is novel, the central idea is clear, and the incidents are worked up with a degree of skill and good taste, that are eminently satisfactory. Throughout the four acts, one breathes everywhere the fresh, crisp air of the western plains. It will be produced with a capable cast and beautiful scenic equipment at the Norway Opera House, April 17, 1913.

NUMBER 15.

Corporation Meeting.

The annual corporation meeting was held Tuesday evening, April 8, at the Norway Opera House, at 7:30, with a large number of voters present.

The following officers were elected: Moderator—A. S. Kimball. Assessors—Geo. W. Holmes, Stuart W. Goodwin, W. A. Rickell.

Chief—J. P. Cullman. 1st Asst.—J. P. Cullman. 2nd Asst.—F. H. Hurd. Fire Police—G. A. Morse, S. G. Hatch, Guy Bates, Geo. E. Walker, H. E. Mixer, E. C. Winslow.

The corporation voted to have all poll taxes assessed in the year 1913, made due and payable July 1, 1913.

It was voted to have all taxes, other than poll taxes, which were assessed in 1913, made due and payable Nov. 15, 1913. The interest on same to commence Jan. 1, 1914, at 6 per cent.

$900 was voted to be raised for police service; and $4,500 for corporation expenses.

The taxes of the heirs of Wm. S. Pratt were abated for the year 1913.

The principle article of interest was that pertaining to a sewer, which was largely debated. It was first voted to build a sewer under the permanent road which is to be built, and to raise $5,500 for the same, assessing the abutters 50 per cent. of the cost. This vote was rescinded and it was voted to raise $1,400 by taxation the present year, and $1,400 by a corporation note for one year; the remainder to be paid abutters.

After some deliberation the latter vote was rescinded and it was voted not to construct a sewer under the permanent road, leaving the question of the sewer open again; and it was finally voted to build the entire sewer throughout the village, the cost of which is estimated to be $32,000, which sum it was voted to raise; $3,200 of this sum to be raised this year by taxation.

The assessors were given the right to assess such sums as they see fit upon the abutters, the sum not to exceed 3/4 of the $32,000. The remainder of the $32,000 is to be raised by bonds, and $3,200 is to be paid annually; the assessors each year are to be instructed to assess the amount that they shall deem proper to assess on the abutters and to assess the remainder by general taxation.

The corporation assessors were appointed a committee to have charge of the construction of the sewer.

The meeting finally adjourned about 8:50.

Shoe Factory Stockholder's Meeting. The meeting was held in Engine House Hall last Monday evening. All of the old officers were dropped and a new board chosen. The report of the treasurer, H. D. Smith was accepted.

On the Norway Shoe Shop Co., the receipts for the past year for rent were $1,983.16, and $1,085 was paid to reduce the interest account, $426.

The outstanding bonds at 5 per cent. are $1,455, also a second mortgage to B. F. Spiney & Co. of $5,000. This is not to bear interest until after the first mortgage bonds are paid.

The Sanborn Shoe Shop Co. received for rent $358.72 and raised by selling 4 per cent. bonds, $1,900 which were expended in putting in a new boiler.

Both corporations have the same board of officers and are:

Pres.—E. E. Andrews. Clerk.—E. N. Sweet. Treas.—F. R. Smith. Directors.—A. J. Stearns, Geo. I. Cummins and H. E. Foster.

V. Pres. of the Sanborn Shoe Shop Co.—Geo. L. Curtis.

A move to change the time of holding the annual meeting was made and will be acted on at the next meeting. It was thought best to change the date to the first Tuesday evening in April.

The trustees and officers of the town will have many repairs to make on these shops this year if the requests made by occupants are granted and it seems they are really necessary for the making of shoes successfully.

Grand Castle of Maine, K. E. G.

The Grand Castle of Maine, K. E. G., held its 22nd annual session in Norway, Thursday, April 10th, beginning at 10 o'clock, in Oxford County Hall in the Advertiser block. All the past chiefs were entitled to a vote at the Grand Castle. Reduced rates were granted by the various railroads for this association.

Oxford Castle No. 2 conferred the Pilgrim's degree on the evening of April 9th followed by a lunch, after which a rifle match was held.

The teams taking part in the shoot were from Portland, Lewiston and Auburn, and Norway. The score is as follows:—

Portland. Baker, Capt. 22. Nichols 20. C. L. Ross 20. Robertson, Capt. 20. McDonald 21.

Lewiston and Auburn. Moffit 20. Ross 18. Nichols 18. C. L. Ross 20. Robertson, Capt. 20. McDonald 21.

Norway. Wilson 17. Cleveland 20. Allen 19. Wheeler 19. Curtis 19. Winslow, Capt. 21. Winslow 21.

The Portland team won first and the Lewiston and Auburn and Norway teams tied. At the off shoot of the captains, Robertson of Lewiston and Maxim of Norway, Robertson made 18 points and Maxim 19, giving Norway second. There were about 70 present at this session.

The report by Martin L. Kimball, Grand Master of Records, showed that there were 12 castles on May 10th, 1912, 2 were reorganized during the year, and on April 10, 1913, there were 14 working castles.

A recommendation had been made to transfer Lincoln Castle from Brunswick to Bath, which was done, and in the autumn of 1912 a large, active meeting of Lincoln Castle was held in "the shipping city," and the degrees conferred by Brunswick Castle on a large class of candidates.

Since then Lincoln Castle has been able to stand alone and is in good condition. Much credit was due the Noble Chief, Joseph W. Larrabee, for the energy and executive ability bringing about the result; also Brother Scott Greenleaf, who served as organizer.

A dispensation was granted in March for Pine Tree Castle, No. 13, at Stetson, which ceased work four years ago—to resume its labors, and to reduce the dues to $1.00.

Last year the membership of the castles had increased 9, but this year the increase is 27, making a total of 284.

The amount received during the year was $550.05; the total assets of the Grand Castle is $286.83, with a liability of $193.73, showing a balance in favor of the castle of $93.10. For the first time in years the cash on hand was so large, and the indebtedness could not be liquidated by reducing the balance in treasury to a small sum, but it is thought wise not to do this immediately as a working balance for emergency is needed.

By vote of the castle last session, P. S. C., Howard Winslow, conferred the Past Chief's degree on Brother James L. Anderson, P. C., Charles E. Hayford and Brother Clinton H. Honey.

Certificates have been received and are on file from G. H. P., Ernest E. Paige, stating that he had installed Brother H. W. Garland of Carmel as Grand Chief Guardsman, as authorized by the castle.

An April Shower.

A modern poem opens with these lines:—"If you must sit and sigh, And have the blues, Remember, there are signs and sighs, And blues and blues."

There are showers and showers, especially in April. Ella Keene experienced a very pleasant and a very unexpected one last Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. Alma Harriman.

Only darkness greeted Miss Keene as she entered the house, but the sudden flashing of the lights revealed a merry group of friends. While the April rain was falling without, Miss Keene was invited to investigate the shower drops within. There was much merriment as the "drops" were one by one unwrapped. All the gifts were dainty and useful. One of the most acceptable was a very fine chafing dish, given by a club of young ladies of which Miss Keene is a member.

A fortune hunt was next enjoyed. Each one after finding her fortune was required to read it for the amusement of all.

Dainty refreshments were served. The table appointments were in red and white. The place cards were tiny red umbrellas and on each one was a title suitable to "the person whose name it bore."

Miss Keene holds a rare place in the hearts of all who know her well and many were the wishes for her future happiness.

Don't Overlook This

A Careful Personal Will Prove Its Value to Every Advertiser Reader.

The average man is a doubter, and there is little wonder that this is so. Misrepresentations make people sceptics. Now-a-days the public ask for better evidence than the testimony of strangers. Here is proof which should convince every Advertiser reader.

W. F. Cotton, farmer, Deering, St. Norw., Me., says: "I was glad to find a remedy that would cure me of kidney trouble and backache. I had suffered for a long time. Some days the trouble would be so bad I could hardly do anything. I seemed to be sore all over, and my back pained constantly. The kidney secretions were irregular in passage and there was a great deal of sediment in them. Doan's Kidney Pills were so highly praised that I finally got a box, and they gave me relief right away. In a short time I was cured. I got this remedy at Stone's Drug Store and recommend it highly."

Heart and Conscience.

(In answer to Mrs. Cora M. W. Greenleaf.)

Men are strange and women also, And their ways are uncertain; But the heart that is true and free, Grasping every truth that lies free, When their hearts are "out of place" From wrong doing in the past, From weakness and from sin, Working slow and living fast, Then some unforeseen temptation Comes along and blocks the way, Conscience lurks in consternation With no courage for the fray. If there's not a steady purpose, And there's somewhat lack of sand, Then that poor deluded conscience— It will strive to beat the band. Then look out for wrongs repeating, Sinful deeds and words untrue, For false inwardness and cheating, And all things that bad looks do. Life's mistakes and wrongs and failures E. W. Edwards, D.D., all say, But the wise will take advantage And repairs will soon be made.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and restoring the system to its normal state. Proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer $100 Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Constipation and Catarrh

S. E. HARTMAN, M. D.

Now you are constipated. You have taken laxatives a great many years. You have tried to select a diet that would keep your bowels regular. In this you have failed and were obliged to go back to your laxatives again. This, I say, has been going on many years. You also have a slight catarrh in the head and throat. You never imagined that the catarrh had anything to do with the constipation. Suppose I were to tell you that as long as you have that catarrh you will never get better of your constipation. Would you believe me or not it is the truth. For many years I have been wrestling with the problem of furnishing the public an internal cathartic remedy. Peruna has been the remedy that I have devised and it has certainly relieved many thousands of people, yes hundreds of thousands of people, of chronic catarrh.

Constipation was my chief difficulty in treating these cases. I often felt that it would be better if a laxative element were added to Peruna. I feared to do so, however, first because of the number of catarrhal patients who needed no laxative, and second I was afraid of making such a radical change in a remedy that was already doing so well. Thus it was that I continued to prescribe with the Peruna a bottle of Manthol to those who needed a laxative. At last, under circumstances explained in my booklet, I was constrained to add the laxative element to Peruna. This constitutes what is now known as the revised Peruna.

Now those who take Peruna will find themselves promptly relieved of their constipation. Second, the catarrh will gradually disappear. And once the catarrh is cured the constipation leaves permanently. Then if you follow the advice given in my booklet, you will never have to take pills any more. Cathartics and laxatives you can ignore. You will be permanently relieved of both your catarrh and the constipation. PERUNA IS FOR SALE AT ALL DRUG STORES. SPECIAL NOTICE—Many persons are making inquiries for the old-time Peruna. To such persons I would say that the new Peruna is now put out under the name of KA-TAR-NO, manufactured by the K. A. Company, Columbus, Ohio. Write them and they will be pleased to send you a free booklet.

Fresh Tobacco Never Bites; Dry, Cut-up Tobacco Does

Only when the natural moisture dries out of tobacco can a "bite" get into it. In the Sickle plug, all the moisture, flavor and fragrance are pressed in and kept in by the natural leaf wrapper. Every pipeful you whittle off the plug is fresh—so you always get a slow-burning, cool, sweet, satisfying smoke.

If you want your tobacco already cut up for you, in packages, you have to be content with dry tobacco, that burns fast and hot, and bites your tongue.

That's why experienced smokers cut up their own tobacco, from the Sickle plug. They get more tobacco, because they don't pay for a package—and better tobacco, because it's always fresh.

Uncle Jerry King.

By Dr. Elizabeth G. Frym Perry, Fryeburg, Me.

Uncle Jerry was seated in his reading room, lost in the wonders of ancient lore, when James, the farm boy, entered and handed him a letter that he brought from the post office. He opened it and read. Holding it still in his hand he went to the window and looked out upon the Berkshire Hills, then down over the forest and down over the great field, on up to his well kept garden, and still on up to the little flower garden that Betty took so much delight in, then up to his window that was framed in honeysuckle, and fed his senses with the rich fragrance. That he poured out his love:

"Dear Mother Nature, for forty years you have cradled me upon your bosom, and now I must leave you for the first time, but not many suns will find me absent from your dear presence. I dread to take one step back into the folds of social life, but I must redeem my pledge."

He sat down to his desk to answer the invitation, which was really more of a mandate, and noted the day, and even the hour, that he would meet him at R. R. station in Boston. He then wrote a brief reply that he would be there.

After despatching the letter he went to a huge oak chest and took therefrom a suit of clothes that had lain in tobacco leaves for forty years. Time had not dimmed its lustre, but time had shrunk the form that it once fitted. Uncle Jerry gave no thought to style. Then he took from a shelf a hat box that held the silk high hat, of bell crown and narrow brim, which he looked upon as the glossy silk and thought it beautiful.

What did he know of the foolishness of a world that he had divorced himself from for forty years.

As his garments lay upon the table, a ray of pride shot through his brain, as he gazed upon the material of his black silk velvet vest, bespangled with blue roses. This pride was but for a moment, the cloud of his life soon buried his thoughts in its darkness.

Shaking off the unwelcome thought he went back to the box of ancient history where Jerry's letter had interrupted his reading, and soon the world was forgotten.

That night, doubt and desire wove fantastic dreams that that rubbed sleep of its balmy sweetness, and the early lay of the old red rooster, broke a quiet slumber that he had fallen into, but that old bird was his mentor, and he obeyed his call and soon was busy in preparation for his journey, which transpired with clockwork regularity and he was on his way to the R. R. station in Boston where young Jerry was waiting for him, but having never met, it was not easy to recognize each other.

The passengers filed out of the coaches, but no one like Uncle Jerry's picture, and not a single old man, who seemed to be looking for someone, Jerry started up his black span and said: "Are you waiting for someone?"

"Yes, I expected my nephew, Jerry King, would meet me," said the old man.

"I am Jerry King, are you Uncle Jerry King?"

"Yes, I am glad to see you my boy."

But poor Jerry gave back no such greeting for he was the last of his kind and this antique mortal made his vain living on shrink, and "What will Lula say?" was the mute answer.

"Well uncle, get right in and we will soon be at home."

Uncle Jerry took his ponderous carpet bag into the wagon and Jerry drove fast to get his companion into the house, out of sight. Arriving at his home his man took care of his horses and Uncle Jerry was shown into the fashionable reception room, where he was met by a feeling like a chipmunk.

"Oh Lula, Uncle has come and she's looking object you never saw."

"For shame Jerry, to speak so of your uncle. Is bloodless this and cold in your heart as that? Where is he? I will go and welcome him to my home."

"He is in the reception room."

Lula went at once and holding out both hands, said "Welcome, Uncle Jerry."

"Who are you?" said Uncle Jerry, staring as though a spook stood before him.

"I am Lula, Jerry's wife."

Jerry had followed his wife and hearing the question, said, "Why Uncle, what is the matter with your hand over your brow and replied, 'Oh, only a memory sting.'

He then extended his hand with a convulsive grasp and pressed her hands. To end Uncle Jerry's confused manner Lula suggested showing Uncle Jerry to his room.

"Well, I suppose I may as well give you what I have brought before going to my room."

He then opened the capacious carpet bag and taking a package out placed it upon a chair, remarking, "That is my night shirt."

Then he plunged into the bag and drew forth a pair of plump chickens, then again another pair and still another pair, and depositing them upon the carpet, said, "Two for you Jerry, two for brother Henry and two for sister Lucy."

"They will all be here this evening so you can give them to them. We thank you for the present, and will enjoy it," said Lula.

They then filed up the stairs, Uncle Jerry's cow hide shoes squeaking at every step, and his eyes taking in the fine appointments, and, when in his room he said, "You have a fine home, is it all your own getting?"

"Yes, Uncle, everything, my horse and stable, I made in my profession by law."

"Are you alone in business?"

"No sir, I am in company with Uncle Walcott, Aunt Lucy's husband."

After showing him the picket room and requesting him to make himself at home they withdrew, remarking that dinner would be ready at 6 o'clock.

When left alone he began to look at the books, for book lore was the spine of his existence, and he had an old volume and he read the title, "The Lights and Shadows of the Ages." "I never heard of this book," and taking out his big iron framed spectacles, he buried himself in the pages. He found it very interesting, strangely so, and gave no thought to time until Jerry rapped at his door and invited him to dinner.

Uncle Jerry looked around the table and saw nothing but some fancy bowls with soup and a little plate of crackers. He said nothing but at his soup with undue noise, and when finished prepared to leave the table, saying, "I eat nothing but bread and milk for supper at home, but the soup is nice." Then Lula exclaimed, "Oh Uncle, this is only an appetizer, the dinner will be brought in at once. You must eat more than the soup."

"No, no, it is all I care for. I have found an interesting book so I will go to my room."

Eve was darkening down and Jerry went to his Uncle's room and lighted the lamp, and the Jerry was soon living in the mystery of ages long past. But the charm was broken by Jerry who informed him that his brother and sister had arrived, and although unwilling to forego the treat he laid the book down and followed his nephew and when he entered the parlor his brother Henry exclaimed, "So here comes the 'Hermit of the Berkshires,' ha ha, well Jerry I am glad to see you. Allow me to introduce my wife, Mrs. Henry King."

Henry King gave him an almost scornful bow but no word. Lucy greeted her brother gladly, and Mr. Walcott, the greatest financier and lawyer in Boston, was eager in his attention.

After the greeting Henry said, "Why Jerry this is the salt of clutches you had made when?"

"You are trespassing upon forbidden subjects, say no more." Jerry's face was stern and painful.

"Well Jerry, you must go with me tomorrow and see my brother and sister and make you more up-to-date."

"No, Henry, I shall go as I came. I shall go home tomorrow, but I want a private talk with you before I go, and as may well be now as ever."

Henry and the wife went into the library and closing the door, said, "We are safe here, what do you wish to say?"

"What was Jerry's wife's maiden name?"

A quiet smile played around Henry's lips as he answered, "Her name was Lula Barton. Why do you ask?"

"She looks the very picture of—"

"Yes, I have noticed it."

"Who was her mother before she married Barton?"

"Jerry, you have guessed it. She was Fred Marston's widow. When Marston died he left one million to Lula Baldwin, his wife, and she is enjoying it upon the tide of fashionable life in New York."

She gave Jerry's wife a hundred thousand, and Jerry refused to touch a dollar of it, and she uses what she pleases for herself. Mrs. Marston married Barton for his companionship as he was a very handsome man. He died soon after she ever had. She was then only child of Lula's birth, which was a great misfortune to her mother.

Lula knows nothing of the link that she forms between you and her mother. Mrs. Barton's friends say that she has never been happy with her husband. I doubt that she regrets her marriage, but for if a girl ever loved, she loved you, Jerry, but money blinds the best sometimes and its glitter blinded Lula Baldwin. Lula has a photo of her mother, would you like to see it?"

"Yes, but let me know that I saw it."

Henry brought it, and Jerry looked upon it as though it were the tomb wherein his heart lay buried. It was a beautiful picture and Jerry, with his eyes moist, kissed it with a groan of anguish. "It is away, Henry, forget my weakness. She has her world, I have mine."

"They returned to the parlor and the evening passed pleasantly and in due time broke up with pleasant hand shaking and hopes of future meetings, and Uncle Jerry retired, glad to be alone to think, and his old love to be the subject most potent. He passed a restless night out was up at dawn of day, to enjoy the rare treat of the "Lights and Shadows of the Ages." He read until Jerry invited him to the breakfast room. When he entered, Lula greeted him cordially and said, "Uncle Jerry you must be hungry, having eaten nothing but a cup of soup since you came."

"It was all I needed but I shall do better this morning."

"Did you rest well?" asked Jerry.

"Not very, it was the change from my quiet home, but I had a pleasant hour with that old book. I would like to get a copy of it if I could."

"You cannot get a copy, it is out of print. You mean the 'Lights and Shadows of the Ages'?" said Lula.

"Yes."

"Well, Uncle Jerry, I will give you the book. It is one that mother gave me with the others for my library."

"I will gladly accept it and keep it as a proof of your regard for your rusty old Uncle," said Uncle Jerry, laughing.

Uncle Jerry enjoyed his breakfast, praised the coffee and omelet, which pleased Lula.

After breakfast, Uncle Jerry took out his watch, a big silver thing weighing at least one pound and known in his young days as a "Bull's Eye." Lula asked to see it, and said, "Should it not go on your carry such a big heavy watch?"

"Oh, it is well enough for my home, but not for a fashionable gentleman."

After Jerry had shown his uncle over the house, barn and stable, the object of his leave-taking was mentioned and Jerry prepared to carry him to the station in Boston, and in due time Uncle Jerry found James waiting for him and when he reached his dear home he opened his carpet bag to get the precious book and found a beautiful gold watch and a note from Lula, "Accept this from your loving niece, Lula King."

Uncle Jerry was surprised and pleased and the next day sent a happy acknowledgment of the gift. Lula answered in a pleasant way and a correspondence grew out of it, and Uncle Jerry began to look for his letters. It came to be no surprise to get anything from Lula, until one day a heavy letter came of several pages, as Lula's were small society letters. Opening it hastily he read:

Dear Jerry:—Don't be vexed by this letter. I should not have had the courage to write it had not a letter from Lula told me that you had broken the bond of silence and your eyes related them. This gave me courage as tho' a break in the clouds of my life had let in the heavenly rays of hope, and a desire to unveil the secrets of my soul to you."

Dear Jerry, when I turned traitor to my master, I was deluded by the power of wealth, and I believed that I could learn to love the man that had bought me, but time proved the fallacy of the hope, for you stood between us every hour, your finger pointing to my shame and your eyes pierced my soul, until I hated the man that I had sold myself to, and when death swept him from my path, I was free in person, but a slave in heart, for you were my master, living in my heart, forbidding all intercourse with the world, thus making vain every hope, and I in the world but not of it, as my heart was constantly rapping at the gates of your home and begging your return to me."

Lula was alone and I speak of loneliness accepted Nathan Barton's offer of marriage. He had no wealth but a pleasing personality, and served as a counterpoise to my weary hours, and Lula was the result, sent as a key to open the forbidden gates. Oh, Jerry, can I enter?

Will you take back your own Lula, and let her be your companion or slave—anything so I get within the pale of your life? Jerry and Lula have invited me to sit down on the 20th inst. it being Lula's birthday. I have promised to be there. Now dear Jerry, I wish you'd be there too. We can meet as friends. They know nothing of our early attachment—of my crime.

Now dear Jerry, if you consent, just answer if only to say, "I will be there."

Your loving
Lula Barton, 555 5th Ave., N. Y.

Uncle Jerry read with flashing and paling face, and humid eyes. He was overwhelmed and his breath came in smothered sobs, he must have more air. He took the letter and went out over the fields into the forest, to ask the great sentinels that stood in majestic beauty, to whisper thro' the zephyrs his duty to himself and Lula. As he stood the dark picture of his life seemed to fade away and visions of true happiness took its place. He smiled and said:

"The mystery of life is being unfolded. She holds the cup to my lips, I will drink."

He returned, and at once sent the answer, "I will be there."

The next day, Uncle Jerry went to Boston, and when he returned in the late afternoon, James could hardly believe that the man who stood with huge boxes could be the master, but Jerry's kind voice dispelled the crude fancy, and soon Jerry was in his home again.

He opened the boxes, and taking out the ancient suit, he placed it again in the oak chest with a grim grim smile.

That night, dreams of Lula's love made sleep a luxury which was disturbed by the early lay of the red rooster. Uncle Jerry awoke with a smile. Everything wore the soft aura of happiness thro' the joy of his own soul.

He made a careful toilet for this day was the crisis of his life.

In the parlor of the King home there was a cheerful family party. Much mirth over the presence prevented the ring of the door bell being heard and to their dismay and great surprise Uncle Jerry entered, joining them in cheer. He at once advanced towards Mrs. Barton who stood pale and trembling and would have fallen had not Jerry's strong arm held and pressed her close to his heart, whispering, "Dear Lula."

Henry and Lucy understood the situation but Lula and Jerry were amazed.

"Let us leave them alone," said Henry. An hour had passed, when Uncle Jerry thence, Barton upon his arm entered the library and introduced her as the prospective Mrs. Jerry King.

Lucy and Henry applauded merrily, but Lula stood in wonder and faintly said:

"Mother, what does this mean?"

"Then Uncle Jerry said: 'Oh, we are going to fulfil a compact made forty years ago, and the ceremony will be quietly performed at an early date. Your mother will tell you all about it.'"

Four days after the meeting between Uncle Jerry and Mrs. Barton, two coaches stopped at the parsonage of Rev. Dr. Black. They brought the King family to witness the marriage of Uncle Jerry and Mrs. Barton and the twins were with them.

They all went to the railroad station and bade God Speed to Uncle Jerry and his bride who took the train for the Hermitage where they spent two days in ecstatic bliss, then returned to Cambridge, where they spent many happy years.

I ought to have painted last year, but I had to pay $2.25 a gallon. I've got to paint this year; I'll take a little more paint; I suppose a gallon in 10; and a little more work, I suppose 1 day in 10.

My job would have cost last year about $2.50; it is going to cost this year $5.00. $2.50 gone. I suppose I'll be the same again if I wait again.

What if paint goes down to $1.75 a gallon? $2.50 on the job!

I shan't wait; what a fool I was!

Doctors Said He Had Dropsy.

Some time ago I had an attack of dropsy which finally settled in my kidneys and bladder. I doctors with the doctors and they claimed I had dropsy. I tried other remedies and got no relief from any of them. My condition was such that I was unable to work for about two months and the annoying symptoms caused me a great deal of trouble and pain. I was hardly able to turn over in bed. Seeing one of your almanacs, I decided to give 'Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root' a trial and after taking several bottles was able to resume my work again. I cannot say too much in praise of your Swamp-Root as the results in my case were truly wonderful.

Yours very truly,

Comparative Digestibility of Food

Made with different Baking Powders

From a Series of Elaborate Chemical Tests:

An equal quantity of bread (biscuit) was made with each of three different kinds of baking powder—cream of tartar, phosphate, and alum—and submitted separately to the action of the digestive fluid, each for the same length of time.

The relative percentage of the food digested is shown as follows:

Bread made with
Royal Cream of Tartar Powder:

100 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with
phosphate powder:

68 1/4 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with
alum powder:

67 3/4 Per Cent. Digested

These tests, which are absolutely reliable and unprejudiced, make plain a fact of great importance to everyone: Food raised with Royal, a cream of tartar Baking Powder, is shown to be entirely digestible, while the alum and phosphate powders are found to largely retard the digestion of the food made from them.

Undigested food is not only wasted food, but it is the source of very many bodily ailments.

Comparative Digestibility of Food

Made with different Baking Powders

From a Series of Elaborate Chemical Tests:

An equal quantity of bread (biscuit) was made with each of three different kinds of baking powder—cream of tartar, phosphate, and alum—and submitted separately to the action of the digestive fluid, each for the same length of time.

The relative percentage of the food digested is shown as follows:

Bread made with
Royal Cream of Tartar Powder:

100 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with
phosphate powder:

68 1/2 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with
alum powder:

67 3/4 Per Cent. Digested

These tests, which are absolutely reliable and unprejudiced, make plain a fact of great importance to everyone: Food raised with Royal, a cream of tartar Baking Powder, is shown to be entirely digestible, while the alum and phosphate powders are found to largely retard the digestion of the food from them.

Undigested food is not only wasted food, but it is the source of very many bodily ailments.
